Panel details

The University of Detroit Mercy Law School was looking for a way to exhibit some of their most prized assets - their students, faculty, distinguished alumni and generous donors. In addition, they wanted to exhibit the rich history of the complex, its buildings and the people who contribute so much in the schools growth.

A simple but graphic display was designed to accommodate their needs. Multiple were produced to recognize all of their wishes. A combination of historical photos and architecture provided the background, and the message was displayed on brass plaques lettered and mounted on trimmed walnut panels.
